POKE Bowls

“POKE is a traditional Hawaiian main dish in which the basic ingredient is raw fish. Traditional forms are aku (an oily tuna) and he'e (octopus). In Hawaiian POKE means "to slice" or "cut". Around year 2014 POKE BOWLS became very popular in the continental part of USA and were opened many POKE BOWLS restaurants where the traditional version of POKE was supplemented with avocado, wheats, vegetables, ponzu or soy sauce and other delicious ingredients. Only less than 10 years has passed since the POKE BOWLS reached other parts of the world, including our "ANDALŪZIJAS SUNS" as well"

Ravioli

"Ravioli is a traditional Italian meal, born in the 14th century. The filling of the ravioli depends of the region where it is made. For example - in Rome, the filling of the ravioli is made of Ricotta cheese, spinach, nutmeg and black pepper. While in Sardinia - it is filled with Ricotta cheese and grated lemon zest."

The chefs of "Andalūzijas Suns" have the RIGHT opinion
about cooking:

1. If you haven't witnessed the speed of light - come see our kitchen at work;
2. Give the food a bit of a kick with sharp knife-work;
3. The secret of a fabulous meal is not found in a team of chefs, but in a family of chefs;
4. An outstanding meal can only be made by the Oceans Twelve of "Andalūzijas Suns".
